

Project Title: Big Think

Overview:The Big Think is trying to inspire and encourage young adults to discuss their passion and share their thoughts with the world. Ultimately giving them a voice.

Outcomes and impacts: Our project has (so far) been able to connect 10 students with their thoughts, on the subject of Freedom of Speech. However if this was to happen again, we would have a more detailed agenda.

A learning process: throughout this project, we have learned the tough way, that planning is key to success. If we would've had a clear plan from the start we would have been able to be more efficient with time.

Why did you chose this project?: we chose this project as we knew it would be an interesting one to carry through. Not only interesting, but challenging also. The challenging part being: how to we get young adults to talk about their passions/ share their opinions with the world? We considered it a challenge as it young people tend to not to show and talk about their passions as it is against the 'social norm', that also being the reason that young people tend not to get involved in extracurricular activities.

Future: In the future we hope to carry on our projects by hosting more discussions around our local area, we also hope to grow the project on a national basis, we will do this with the framework being available for other schools.

The project

- Social Media Campaign.
- In school conference.
- In school discussion.
- Framework for others to use to carry out a similar discussion
